Arif is a university student who has been invited to speak at a student leadership seminar. He knows this is a great chance to build his reputation among faculty members and peers. He plans to wear a neat formal outfit, arrive early, and prepare an engaging 5-minute speech. However, on the event day, he gets caught up chatting with friends at the cafeteria and forgets to check the time. He arrives at the venue just as his name is being called, looking slightly out of breath. His speech is still good, but the audience notices he seems unprepared.

Identify two mistakes Arif made that affected both his time management and impression management. Suggest one practical solution for each mistake.
